

Taking Leadership To New Heights

The Leadership Circle Profile (TLCP) is a true breakthrough among 360 degree profiles. It is the first to connect a number of well-researched competencies with the underlying and motivating habits of thought. It reveals the relationship between patterns of action and internal assumptions that drive behaviour. Ultimately, TLCP goes to the sources of behaviour to get greater leverage on change. Furthermore, unlike most profiles that take hours to interpret, TLCP integrates all this information in a way that brings the key issues to the surface.

The data in TLCP reveals itself in seconds. At a glance, the whole gestalt is accessible - putting leaders in touch with what is working, what is not, and why. In most organisations, this treasure trove of information remains buried. TLCP makes it easily accessible, creating a foundation on which ground breaking change can occur at a higher level and sustainable pace.

ABOUT DR JENNIFER GARVEY BERGER

Jennifer uses her expertise in adult development and complexity of mind to support leaders internationally through coaching and leadership development programmes in both public and private sector organizations. She writes about these ideas (e.g. Executive Coaching: Practices and Perspectives, co-edited with Catherine Fitzgerald) and also teaches coaches and consultants in advanced workshops around the world (e.g., Harvard University, University of Sydney). Jennifer has a Masters degree and a Doctorate from Harvard University, where she was mentored by Robert Kegan, the leading adult development theorist. Formerly an associate professor at George Mason University, Jennifer learned about deep change in 2006 when she turned down the tenure offer and moved to New Zealand with her husband, two kids, and the family dog. Jennifer loves that her life is a blend of watching the sun set over the Tasman Sea and having conversations with interesting people all around the world.
